BENETEAU

Following on the huge success of their Swift Trawler 34 during the past eight years, Beneteau is offering a successor, the Swift Trawler 35. At 10.5 metres in length, it features more modern styling and added indoor and outdoor volume. As with its predecessor, there are lots of innovative uses of space, including an improved galley design; the flybridge settee now has room to seat six and there's a unique folding transom door arrangement to expand the cockpit space. While some of the best features of the 34 carry over, there's plenty more to see in the new 35. Power is from a single 425-horsepower Cummins diesel. There is a review of the Beneteau ST30 in the June 2017 issue of PY. Beneteau's Gran Turismo line has a new flagship, the GT50, available in both flybridge and sedan models. The hull features Beneteau's Air Step planing and is powered by twin Volvo IPS 600s. One of the unique features is the ship control system, which makes it simpler than ever to check gauges and manage ship systems. beneteau.com

BOSTON WHALER

To help celebrate Boston Whaler's 60th anniversary, the company is introducing the all-new 350 Realm. It has the features of both an open cockpit and centre console boat with the convenience of a forward cabin. The 350 Realm has all the features of a pure fishing machine, but, thanks in part to the cabin, is much more versatile and designed with a higher level of comfort. Features include versatile seating arrangements with bow seating with room for a table and sunshade. Inside is a V-berth, microwave and fully-enclosed stand-up head.

Triple Mercury Verado outboards provide power, and there is joystick piloting available. bostonwhaler.com

CAMPION MARINE

With the Canadian dollar still doing poorly against the U.S. dollar, it makes sense to buy local, and Kelowna-based Campion Marine is Canada's largest independent boat builder. They are one of the few companies in North America building boats in the 16 to 18-foot range (though they build larger) and this is excellent news
